

Master's Program in Applied Sociology

Social Inequality and Social Policy

SOCY 606/LLC 606

Dr. Adler • TuTh 6:00-9:10

This course examines poverty and inequality in modern society. The focus is on describing the extent of poverty and inequality, examining theories that attempt to explain these phenomena and discussing the policies that have been employed to mitigate them. The course also considers racial and gender inequality.

Session I, 6 week
Summer 2016