

READY TO READ STUDY

A pilot study to examine language and thinking skills that contribute to preschoolers' comprehension of stories

Are you the parent of a 4-year-old?

What is it?

- Your child will complete three engaging literacy-related tasks, taking about 50 minutes. We also have a questionnaire for parents to complete.

What for?

- This study is designed to examine skills that play a role in children's later reading development.

Where?

- The study will take place on the UMBC campus in the Educational Contexts of Development Lab (SOND 408). Parents may wait for their child in an adjoining room in the lab.

Eligibility Criteria

- Old enough to enter Kindergarten next school year
- English is primary language
- No known physical or cognitive disabilities
